it is not what we say or sing.
That keeps our charm so long onbroken.
Though every lightest leaf we bring.
May long it the heart as friendships tokan;
Not what we sing or what we say.
Can make us dwarer each to other—
We love the singer and his lay.
But love as we, I the silent brother?

Yet bring winate'er your garden grows,
Thrice a siemne to our santies and printers;
Thanks for the mayrite and the rose;
Thanks for the maripoles and challes;

end bles the boys !- are all together ! These come with joyous look and word,
With friendly grasp and cheernit greeting
These smile numers, and more unknown,
The angel greets of every moding;
They does no shadow in the finance
That floshes from the gilded lustra.
But count its—we are still the same;
One sarthly hand, one beavenly cluster;

Love dies not when he base his head.
To make beyond the increw portals—
The light these glowing moments shed.
Wakes from their sleep oor love immortals.
They come as in their loyons prints.
Hefore their morning days were numbers, beath since in their loyons hand of Time—
The eyes have not grown dim that alumbers. The palls that loving sonis have tred
Arch o'er the dust where worldlings grovel.
High as the result o'er the sod—
The cross above the exton's showel!
We rise beyond the exalms of day.
They seem to stoop from spheres of glory
With its one happy hear to stay.
With its youth coines back in song and story. Ah! ours is friendship true as steel.
That was his tried in edge and temper;
It writes upon its accret seal.

four footstops had beging print the golden streets already ! The tangling years have elemened its knot.
Too fast for mortal strength to sauder—
The lightning boils of moin are shot—
No feet of evening's bile thunder!
Too late! too inte!—no graceless hand
Shall stratch its conds in value and exver
To tree the class encircling band.
That made and keeps us one forever!
